REPORT
OF THE
SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE

OF
CHICHESTER, N. H.,

MARCH 11, 1856.

A survey of the condition of our schools the past year, reveals a greater variety of standing than existed the year previous. The causes will better appear as we remark briefly upon each district in order.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

Number of children over 4 years of age, 60. Teachers—Summer, Miss S. Amelia Garland; Winter, Mr. D. F. Haime. Whole number of different scholars—Summer, 48; Winter, 55. Average attendance—Summer, 30; Winter, 37. Length of school—Summer, 10 weeks; Winter, 9½ weeks. Wages of teacher per month—Summer, $8; Winter, $18. Amount of school money, $67,08.

The condition of this school in the summer was good. Seldom do we see so marked a degree of improvement in one term. And this was owing, not so much to a change in the minds of the parents, as to the zeal, skill, and perseverance of the teacher. Young and comparatively inexperienced, yet by entire devotion to her work she succeeded in transmitting her own enthusiasm, both to the pupils and their parents, as was evinced at the closing examination, which was well attended by parents and friends. The order was good, and the progress in knowledge all that could be expected where aptness for teaching is combined with a love for the employment.

The winter term was not so prosperous. The teacher was a native of the district, and this was his first attempt; yet he was not altogether at fault. He seemed to have all the elements for making a successful teacher, and to be devoted to his calling. At each visit of your committee the order was good, and the progress of those who attended commendable. But the non-attendance of a large portion

No material change has been produced in the general character of this school. From Miss Carpenter's reputation, we were led to expect much from the summer term. But the first visit found a very idle, disorderly school. Subsequent visits witnessed some improvement in the general appearance. In her report, she says some classes made very good proficiency in study. Still, the school as a whole, did not quite meet our expectations. The teacher evidently possesses all the qualifications, and some in an eminent degree; but, in this case, seemed too saving of time and strength. The number of scholars is so large, that that amount of pains-taking which would tell well in smaller districts, differently situated, will by no means meet the exigencies of this school. This school can not be measured by other schools.

Consequently the improvement of the winter term suffered some abatement, although the order was better, and the teacher attentive and diligent. Besides, some external influences had a bearing upon the winter term. A settled dislike, both among parents and children, toward the old school-house, has begotten the idea in too many instances, that scholars can not learn any thing in the old house. In this way, the educational interests of the district have sustained a serious injury.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

Number of children over 4 years of age, 29. Teachers—Summer, Miss Abby A. Locke; Winter, Miss Clara A. Maxfield, and Mr. Locke. Whole number of different scholars—Summer, 19; Winter, —. Average attendance—Summer, 15; Winter, —. Length of school—Summer, 6 weeks; Winter, — weeks. Wages of teachers per month—Summer, $6; Winter, —. Amount of school money, $41.07.

This fraction of a district, (being joined to school district No. 10, in Loudon,) has been especially unfortunate in its schools the past year. The teacher employed in the summer was young and inexperienced. The school at the first visit showed previous attainments, without needful precision and system. A second visit found the school in a bad state. The pupils, and not the teacher, had the control. After a further trial, and a consultation with the superintending committee of Loudon, it was deemed best to advise the prudential committee to close the school; which was done July 3d. The house was not re-opened till the time for the winter term. But the election of the teacher was no more propitious than in the summer. Although she was eminently qualified to teach some schools, yet the determination to undertake this school under existing circumstances, and contrary to the advice of your committee, was most unwise. A trial of about four weeks convinced her of this truth, and she closed of her own free will. Of the subsequent disposition of the school money, I must refer you to the superintending school committee of Loudon, since no report has been made to your committee.

Such a total disregard of the public interests, as has been shown by the prudential committee of this district, seldom occurs. This declaration would not be made so freely, but for the frank confession, that a teacher of acknowledged worth and acceptance might have been secured, had the committee been so minded.

DISTRICT NO. 8.

Number of children over 4 years of age, 47. Teachers—Summer, Miss Eliza A. Jenness; Winter, Mr. Russell Hodgdon. Whole number of different scholars—Summer, 39; Winter, 49. Average attendance—Summer, 28; Winter, 41. Length of school—Summer, 13 weeks; Winter, $10\frac{1}{2}$ weeks. Wages of teachers per month—Summer, \$8; Winter, \$28. Amount of school money, \$105,67.

Several efforts were made by your committee in the summer to find all the scholars together; but without success. Thirteen at one time, nineteen at another, and about the same number at another, were all that could be found in the school-room, out of thirty-nine names upon the register. The teacher, although wanting in confidence, nevertheless seemed anxious to do the best she could.

The attendance upon the winter term was better. The first visit found a company of forty-four children, and if a universal activity were the acme of excellence in a school, this would take the palm. Subsequent calls showed a little improvement, at least while the committee was present; although it was evident that the teacher in his intercourse with the scholars was too yielding to influences around him, to pay much regard to order in school, neatness of the room, or refinement of manners. Yet after all, some appeared well in recitation, and all seemed "to have a good time." This is not the time nor the place to speak of the real cause of the present state of education here. In all probability, the cause or causes are known to the district. Some of the parents do ardently desire that their children should reap all the benefits that may be gained from the common school. It is to be hoped, that the majority may yet have a better estimate of the duties they owe their offspring.

Your committee can not close this report without directing the attention of the different districts to the importance of electing to the office of prudential committee, the very best man, or men in the district. He should be a man who will not subordinate the public to private or individual interests—who will display as much sagacity in employing a school teacher, as in hiring a man to make his hay—who regards the moral as well as intellectual education of youth. It may have escaped the attention of some, that by the 20th section of chap. 5 of the School Digest, it is made "the duty of all persons entrusted with, or engaged in the instruction of the young, diligently to impress upon their minds the principles of piety and justice, a sacred regard to truth, love of country, humanity and benevolence; sobriety, industry, and frugality; chastity, moderation and temperance;" &c. Now it is utterly impossible for those who are themselves of loose principles, or destitute of correct habits, to comply with this provision of the statute. "Streams can never rise higher than the fountain head." Therefore none but persons of virtuous principles, of upright and refined deportment, should be employed as teachers. And here allow a general remark; our schools have suffered from the employment of young, inexperienced teachers. This, from our situation, is in a measure unavoidable, because of small schools, and of small pay. Beginners, naturally, seek a small school and can not command high wages, therefore, it has fallen to the lot of this town to introduce, at least, its share of tyros to the business of school teaching. Consequently, our loss from this inexperience has been very considerable. Still if our prudential committees continue to employ this class of teachers, it ought to be well understood, that no teacher, whether young or old, can expect much favor, who does not earn the worth of his money.

Your committee would also call the attention of the prudential committees to the following clause of the law.

"It shall be the duty of every teacher of a public school to make at the close thereof a report to the superintending committee of the town, of the number of scholars, male and female, that have attended, the branches of learning taught, and the progress made. And no teacher shall be entitled to pay for his services until this provision has been complied with."

See School Digest, chap. 5, sect. 19. In five or six cases, the public money has been paid over to the teacher, before making report to the superintending committee.

The above is an accurate statement of the condition of our schools, together with such suggestions as have occurred to your committee, in the discharge of the duties assigned him. Thirty-four visits have been made during the year; at each of which copious notes were taken. Upon them, the present estimate is founded. An erroneous judgment may have been sometimes formed. But it has ever been my earnest endeavor to be just and impartial in the bestowal or withholding of praise, as the merits of the case and the interests of education required.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

S. M. BLANCHARD,

Superintending School Committee of Chichester.
