Our reliance on dirty energy is polluting our communities, harming our health, and changing our climate. The good news is that we have alternatives. Cities and towns, businesses, nonprofits, and families on the Cape and Islands are reducing their energy usage and switching to clean, renewable energy from sources like solar and wind.

Our recent progress on clean energy should give us confidence that we can go much further. Vineyard Power and Environment Massachusetts Research & Policy Center are convening a conversation about how the Cape and Islands communities can accelerate the transition to 100 percent renewable energy.

Please Join Us and Click here to RSVP.

Coffee and continental breakfast will be served from 8:30 - 9am.
