New Hampshire Tree Farm Field Day – September 19, 2015 Crotched Mountain Rehabilitation Center

Greenfield, N.H. – The 2015 New Hampshire Tree Farm Field Day will take place at Crotched Mountain Rehabilitation Center in Greenfield, NH on September 19th, 2015.

Crotched Mountain Rehabilitation Center was recognized as New Hampshire's Community Tree Farm of the Year for its exceptional forest management and long term forest stewardship.

The facility has moved toward environmentally friendly infrastructure including a custom designed wood chip plant, which has resulted in significant costs savings and supports the local forest products industry. The 1200-acre property is working forest; they conduct regular timber sales to generate revenue, promote diverse wildlife habitat, maintain recreational trail infrastructure and safeguard sensitive natural resource features across the ownership.

Educational opportunities are also an important component of how the forest is used. The New Hampshire Tree Farm Field Day will be one more example of Crotched Mountain Rehabilitation Center's environmental vision and forward thinking. The management of their forestland is a shining example of sound and sustainable forest stewardship.

New Hampshire Tree Farm Field Day registration opens at 8:00am and programs run throughout the day ending at 3:45pm. Attendees can participate in a range of tours and activities related to forest and wildlife management, forest-based recreation, maple sugaring, and a sawmill tour (New England Forest Products).
